Static and dynamic binding in Java are two important concept which Java programmer should be aware of. this is directly related to execution of code. If you have more than one method of same name (method overriding) or two variable of same name in same class hierarchy it gets tricky to find out which one is used during runtime as a result of there reference in code.

What is Static and Dynamic binding in Java with Example

Because the verb "is" is a linking verb, the noun (person) that links to the subject (Tom) is a predicate nominative. You are correct that "Sharon" is a subject but for a different verb (thinks).
