15 3 Heterogeneous Aqueous Solutions

In recent years, many studies have been devoted to investigate the application of biochar for pollutants removal from aqueous solutions. Biochar exhibits a great potential to efficiently tackle water contaminants considering the wide availability of feedstock, low-cost and favorable physical/chemical surface characteristics.

Miscellaneous reactions. In one study, an unusual coupling reaction was described in which an organomolybdenum compound,  $\text{Mo}_3(\text{CCH}_3)_2(\text{OAc})_6(\text{H}_2\text{O})_3_2$  not only sat on a shelf for 30 years without any sign of degradation but also decomposed in water to generate 2-butyne, which is the coupling adduct of its two ethynyl ligands. This, according to the researchers, opens ...

A hydrophobic covering, at the gas-liquid interface, can stabilize nanobubbles [1] The physical theory behind this explanation holds for any covering with an affinity for the gas, including osmotic pressure generation. Mousing over the figure (above left) shows the zeta potential of the nanobubble. This zeta potential reduces in higher ionic strength solutions (with positive charges interfering ...

Solvation describes the interaction of solvent with dissolved molecules. Ionized and uncharged molecules interact strongly with solvent, and the strength and nature of this interaction influence many properties of the solute, including solubility, reactivity, and color, as well as influencing the properties of the solvent such as the viscosity and density.

The preservation of medical laboratory blood samples, mining of sea water for magnesium, formulation of over-the-counter medicines such as Milk of Magnesia and antacids, and treating the presence of hard water in your home's water supply are just a few of the many tasks that involve controlling the equilibrium between a slightly soluble ionic solid and an aqueous solution of its ions.
